Editor's Note

All eyes in the UK and many abroad are on the upcoming 4 July elections. Most polls appear to predict a Labour victory, with the main questions being the ultimate margin of victory and whether the Reform Party will gain enough seats to force a coalition government.

While the country's politics hang in the balance, there's still financial and economic news and professional development opportunities to be aware of.

On 17-21 June, BVIUK taught a cohort of students in its BV 103 "Capstone" course, which provided advanced valuation material and the opportunity for the students to apply what they are learning in guided, collaborative case studies.
